¡Ahora en Español!

OHRP is excited to announce the creation of Spanish language materials on its public outreach website, About Research Participation, www.hhs.gov/about-research-participation. The public outreach resources are intended to help potential volunteers better understand research and find the information they need to decide whether to participate in research. The new materials include Spanish versions of short videos about participating in research, and a printable list of questions that potential volunteers can ask researchers.

Trial coordinators and research staff also could use these materials to facilitate and improve the informed consent process. OHRP intends for these materials to be a valuable resource for the research community as well as the general public. Please consider sharing this information with other human research protection professionals and programs!

New Rules in the Big Easy: Workshop in New Orleans, May 3

OHRP will lead a workshop about “Human Research Reviews: Mastering the Process” at NIH’s OER Regional Seminar in New Orleans on May 3, 2017. This pre-conference workshop is aimed at early-stage investigators who want to learn more about the human subjects research review process and how it aligns with NIH’s review and oversight procedures. Although the focus will be on learning “the basics,” presenters will also cover upcoming changes from the revised Common Rule. Don’t miss out on this chance to engage with OHRP staff and learn about human subjects in NIH-sponsored research. Register today!

View the agenda at: https://regionalseminars.od.nih.gov/neworleans2017/sessions/00a/
Register at: https://regionalseminars.od.nih.gov/neworleans2017/registration/

July in Georgia: a Research Community Forum in Augusta, GA

Join OHRP staff at a Research Community Forum called “Navigating a River of Change: Bringing Research Up to Par” in Augusta, GA, July 18-19, 2017. The workshop will feature interactive presentations by OHRP staff on a range of topics related to the HHS regulations, including discussion of the revised Common Rule. The conference will include break-out sessions covering a variety of research topics such as central IRBs and related issues, genetics research, online consent, and reporting concerns. Connect with human research professionals from across the country and learn about the regulations directly from OHRP staff—don’t miss out!

Register at: http://www.augusta.edu/research/dhhs/